“A splendid film. Suzie Baer is to be congratulated.” – Oliver Stone, Director

“Suzie Baer’s tough, smart doc on Leonard Peltier.” – The Village Voice

“A hard hitting cool-headed, persuasive piece of investigative journalism – well crafted, deeply committed.” – Variety

WARRIOR is the shocking, true story of Leonard Peltier, the American Indian leader locked away for life, convicted of the alleged murder of two FBI agents during a shoot-out on the Pine Ridge Reservation in 1975. Around the world his trial and conviction have been denounced as a sham. Amnesty International, Archbishop of Canterbury, Desmond Tutu, and more than fifty members of the U.S. Congress have appealed for a new trial for the man who has come to symbolize the continued oppression of America’s Indigenous Peoples.

WARRIOR takes us back to the violent confrontations at Pine Ridge in the 1970s, and to today’s Indian reservations where uranium mining and waste dumping are still being heatedly resisted by Indian activists. The heart of the film, though, is a detailed painstaking account of Peltier’s harrowing odyssey through the American justice system.
